

Malawi Now On Its Own

CP from AP-Reuters secretary Ian Macdonald for set-BLANTYRE—With thousands of people gathered in the city today, Malawi celebrated the birth of its independence from Britain early today.

At midnight the former British protectorate of Nyasaland became Malawi, Africa's 37th independent state after 73 years of colonial rule.

Dr Hastings Banda, prime minister of the infant nation, presided at ceremonies as the Malawi flag of black, green and red horizontal stripes replaced the British Union Jack.

Prime Minister Banda, who had been in London for several years, returned to Malawi today to preside over the ceremonies. He was accompanied by a large number of British officials, including the Queen's representative in the 18th member nation of the British Commonwealth.

Ceremonies were held on Blantyre, the capital, and in the surrounding area. In the capital, a large crowd gathered to watch the ceremonies. Banda, who had been in London for several years, returned to Malawi today to preside over the ceremonies. He was accompanied by a large number of British officials, including the Queen's representative in the 18th member nation of the British Commonwealth.

After a moment of silence at midnight, 30,000 voices in the stadium roared with jubilation.

CLIMB MT. MALANJE

Throughout the country, bonfires blazed on prominent hills. A party of whites and blacks climbed 10,000-foot Mt. Malanje, the country's highest peak, to plant the new flag and light the nation's largest bonfire.

For Banda, 54, a physician who attended Harvard medical school, the ceremonies marked the end of a six-year struggle for independence for his people. But he said he wanted nothing but friendship with the former governing power.

Banda, who will head the country's delegation to the Commonwealth prime ministers conference in London this week, said the Malawi independence would be a triumph for the country.

Modest Progress Noted On Canada Stock Exchange

By GORDON GRANT, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets made a modest progress this week despite a June heat wave that appeared to wilt investors' desire.

The Toronto industrial index, which had been at a record level, moved to a high of 3574.4, its highest since 1952.

Volumes were slim. Thursday's trading figures in Toronto were the lightest in almost four months.

It was basically an industrial week.

Natural gas pipeline issues gave leadership. Gains ranged from 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 points. Westcoast, TransCanada and Pincine were the favorites.

Steel makers were stronger, as in New York, with Algoma, Dofasco and Dominion Bridge showing the best gains. The auto stocks suffered through a mediocre week. Ford of Canada was down 34 while General Motors eased a fraction. Chrysler and Ford U.S. made slight gains.

Annual City Skating School Said Beehive Of Activity Today

The Kelowna arena is a hive of activity today as 50 skaters begin eight weeks of summer skating school.

"It's hectic around here for the first couple of days, but all the kids pitch in and help," Gordon Smith, superintendent of Parks and Recreation, said today.

CONCENTRATIONS The free weekly concerts which were held in former years will be continued this year on Friday night at 8:00 p.m. We may not be able to start this Friday, but we will be ready next week," he said.

"Saturday and Sunday there were 50 children staying in the dorms. There have been 17 arrivals from California and the rest are from the Kelowna area, Alberta, Manitoba and B.C. On July 15, skaters and a professional from Spokane will arrive for a six week course. A total of 120 are expected."

LONG DAY "The children start practicing at 8:00 a.m. The first three hours can be spent solo, practicing intricate figures, on allotted patches of ice. At 10:00 a.m. there is 'free skating' and at 11:00 a.m. 'dancing'. After lunch, the schedule starts over again and continues until 10:30 p.m.

"Some of the children practice seven hours a day," he said. The instructors are from the U.S., other Canadian provinces and the Okanagan.

INSTRUCTORS Mrs. Sharon LaRiviere of Calgary, taught in Chicago last year. Mr. and Mrs. John Nicks of Paramount, California, are professional skaters. They will be in charge of most of the U.S. students.

Mrs. Louise Orwell-King was one of the principal skaters in the Ice Follies in the last few years. She is from Salmon Arm and is an ex-Kelowna skater.

U.S. Civil Rights Bill Does Not End The Issue

The U.S. civil rights bill has been signed by President Johnson.

It means for the first time since the Reconstruction days following the civil war, the U.S. federal government will be able to take a broad-based legislative role in promoting racial equality and combating discrimination.

Civil rights bills passed in 1957 and in 1960 were concerned primarily with voting rights. The new bill strengthens the government's role in that respect, but discrimination in a wide range of public accommodations and facilities, empower the government to initiate legal measures to force racial integration in the schools, set up a system to prevent discrimination in employment and deny federal assistance to institutions engaged in discrimination against other things.

It is not an extreme or revolutionary bill. In fact, several states already have provided for non-discrimination in the schools against discrimination to be based on the federal law. However, its significance should not be underestimated. Properly administered, it should make for real progress in some areas.

But the civil rights bill of 1964 will not be the end of the issue. It cannot, by the most hopeful forecast, satisfy those who seek a change "now" in centuries-old prejudices and practices, although it is one step, a big one, in eventual elimination of obstacles to racial justice and understanding in the United States.

The bill represents a real accomplishment to Republican and Democratic leadership in Congress.

Focus now shifts to the communities in which the real tests will come. Not only in points of the principles of the new law, but in the solution of problems beyond its scope. As, for example, those raised by the concentration of Negro population in the cities. Success will depend on the dedication and goodwill of all citizens, including those who believe the federal bill goes too far and those who think it does not go far enough.

THE HIGH ROAD AND THE LOW

Bomber in B.C. Rain Forest Monument to Lost Crew

VANCOUVER (CP)—For 20 years, a rain forest monument has been built in a rain forest 500 miles north of here, silent monument to a missing crew.

HD 319 is a Mitchell medium bomber of the type used in the failed raid on Tokyo last July 18, 1942.

Since 1944, HD 319 has been a monument to some of the worst flying conditions on the continent.

In the last 25 years, 256 airplanes have crashed over Canada's Pacific coast province. Some, like HD 319, lay undiscovered for years and 73 have never been found.

Pilots run greater risks in British Columbia than in other parts of Canada, says F. L. Gordon Duff, a controller at the RCAF's Air-Save Search and Rescue Co-ordination Centre here.

Once a pilot gets into bad weather and poor visibility in the province's 366,255 square miles of mountainous terrain, "he's not going to go far without hitting something."

The same hazards compound the work of search and rescue. "On the Prairies you can see a downed aircraft for 10 miles," says F. L. Duff. "But aircraft don't leave much of a mark in this country, not unless they burn a swath through the trees. But then the people are usually dead."

On Sept. 20, 1960, prospector Magnus Bartman came across the wreckage and his find was reported to the authorities. Because of the dense forest and the length of time that elapsed between crash and discovery,

TODAY IN HISTORY

Parliament passed the Lord's Day Observance Act 58 years ago today—in 1906—after a bitter debate, intended to prohibit all forms of work, amusements, entertainment, sport and almost all commerce from midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday. The act has been bypassed for much of its history by authorities ignoring sections of it or passing over-riding provincial laws.

positive identification of HD 319 took more than a year.

What became of its four-man crew has never been known. One of more may have survived the crash only to perish in a futile fight against the forest.

But post-mortem investigations of long-ago crashes without hope of finding survivors form part of the routine of the search and rescue centre of state.

In 1946 to co-ordinate efforts previously splintered among the navy, army and air force, the department of transport, other government bodies and civilian groups.

The Vancouver centre, one of four such in Canada, controls all search and rescue operations in British Columbia and in a coastal corridor of ocean stretching 800 miles off-shore.

NOTIFY CENTRE
The centre is notified if a plane is half an hour overdue and the officer on duty runs a communications check. If he fails to raise the missing plane, he calls in a searchmaster, an RCAF officer with special training.

The searchmaster, working with centre liaison officers, if necessary, can set up field headquarters to direct the search operation anywhere in the province.

At the call of the officer on duty are military and civilian planes, virtually all military personnel in the area, volunteer mountain rescue teams, pleasure boats and even itinerant freighters.

Two 95-foot cutters of the Canadian Coast Guard at Victoria bolster the centre's seaward reach and since 1961 Capt. W. H. Dale-Johnson has been attached to the centre as coast guard representative.

Co-operation between volunteers and the centre is excellent, says F. L. Duff. The RCAF supplies fuel to private pilots taking part in a search.

The centre can handle three searches simultaneously. Three chairs, each in front of separate communication facilities, are the focal point of the centre's headquarters here.

MAINTAIN RECORDS
Complete records of wrecks, searches and missing planes are on file. The walls are covered with maps, one of them studded with colored pins showing the estimated location and approximate date of all known crashes.

At the call of the officer on duty are military and civilian planes, virtually all military personnel in the area, volunteer mountain rescue teams, pleasure boats and even itinerant freighters.

Two 95-foot cutters of the Canadian Coast Guard at Victoria bolster the centre's seaward reach and since 1961 Capt. W. H. Dale-Johnson has been attached to the centre as coast guard representative.

Although the centre is responsible only for maritime reporting search or rescue, it handled 843 reports during 1963 ranging from missing aircraft to Sunday sailors in distress.

Some of the seemingly clear-cut cases can develop into a baffling headache for the centre.

A TCA Lodestar, Flight 3 from Toronto with 15 aboard, circled Vancouver International Airport preparing to land April 27, 1947, and then vanished. It was never found, prompting Carleton C. Taylor Jr. of Kent, Wash., to offer the use of his diving rod.

A TCA North Star carrying 62 struck Mount Slesse just east of Vancouver Dec. 9, 1958. The wreckage was not located until the following May.

But seven out of 43 were saved Jan. 19, 1952, when a Northwest Airlines DC-4 plunged into the sea off Sandspit airport on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

BUSH BARS RESCUE
Even when search and rescue locates a crash quickly, nature sometimes balks efforts to find survivors.

"It would be possible to walk within 10 feet of a wounded survivor if he were too weak to speak," reported a searcher for survivors of a United States Air Force B-36 which disappeared over the Queen Charlotte Islands Feb. 14, 1950. "The underbrush is unbelievably dense."

At least 12 of the 17 aboard the B-36 parachuted to safety. The rest may have jumped, but they were never found.

Long-lost planes also present problems in the centre's record-keeping department. A wreckage report can often be ticked off by its location as a known and investigated crash. But if the location of a find does not match one of the colored pins in the wreckage map, the site must be investigated.

Sometimes the wreckage turns out to be a known crash in which the location was inaccurately plotted in the first place. Then the record is amended. But at least once the wreck moved.

A fisherman reported finding an airplane wreck off an island in the Gulf of Georgia in August, 1955. Investigation showed it to be an RCAF Liberator which had crashed in 1945 and was already recorded. Shifting seas and tides had changed its position.

ported spotting him 31 years ago. He has been rearing ever since.

Scientific expeditions have sought him for several years but have always failed to come up with any proof that what the Scots say is true.

Now another expedition has made camp on the shores of the loch.

It is spending three months here equipped with telescope and still cameras trained constantly on the water.

"If something does surface," said Ivor Newby, one of the camera crew, "we'll get him good."

No one has ever taken a really satisfactory picture of the monster.

"Most sightings have put the thing in these parts," said Newby. "The loch is at its deepest here about 800 feet."

Richard Bruce, bartender at the Chalmers Inn, was pouring drinks for two customers a few weeks ago when he just happened to turn his head, and . . .

"There it was, 20 feet of it with a head like a serpent, tearing along like a speedboat. It was magnificent. He was heading for Fort Augustus, about 10 miles down the lake."

"Then a few minutes later I saw him again, coming back in the opposite direction, still going like a train."

Three waitresses at the hotel were taking a stroll in the sun outside the inn.

"Dik Spence called to us," said one, "and there it was, out there. The monster. He was wonderful."

Alex Campbell could claim to be the world's foremost authority on the thing.

"I've seen it seven or eight times," he says. "The best view I ever got was the first, in 1938. It was about 30 feet long, with a single humped back, a long neck and head that stuck out about six feet from the water."

Campbell estimates there have been something like 2,000 "fairly reliable" sightings of the monster through the years.

Description from many sources give the monster a variety of shapes, sizes and colors.

It's head is like a swan, a horse, a dragon, a camel. It has one, two, three, four or seven humps. It's brown, it's black, it's grey. It has stripes.

On the shores of Loch Ness, with a commanding view across its waters, stands an old Benedictine abbey.

"Some of us here have seen the monster," says Rev. Andrew McKillop. "I was brought up here, but I have not seen it yet. But I think it's very likely that there's something out there."

Alex Campbell believes the thing may be related to the extinct plesiosaurus, a long-necked swimming reptile of prehistoric times.

The latest scientific effort to prove the monster story is sponsored by a pro-monster Conservative member of Parliament, David James.

Will there be an election in 1964—making our fifth in eight years?

The current debating of our national legislative assembly into an election arena suggests that an early election, say in October, is expected and desired.

But other factors suggest that the present House of Commons should be kept alive, with less drastic moves attempted for its instability and ineffectuality.

What would a 1964 election prove? Thinking voters have nowhere to go. The administration of Mr. Diefenderfer has a house of cards and the same old pokers cannot learn new tricks, say some disgruntled Tories. The Pearson promise has equally melted away after 800 days of indecision to the disappointment of Tories. So where would the thinking voter turn to X to obtain a stable and competent government?

The powerful backstage influences within both parties are now seriously examining the impasse. The general agreement in each camp is that both Mike and Dief must go before Parliament can again become a reasonable forum for conducting the nation's business with confidence restored inside and outside Canada.

ELECTION INDECISIVE?

But at the same time these influential groups frankly admit that yet another costly and distracting election this year would not be likely to produce a majority government.

The Liberals would suffer heavy losses in Ontario in rural districts through the plan to strip the Kingston urban districts through district with repeated readings to French-Canadian demands, such as the pension plan changes, the tax-sharing giveaway, and the conversion of radio station CJBQ to the French language.

These backstage circles of both parties agree that the slaughter of Liberal M.P.s in Ontario would total at least 20, and would include some of the giants of the cabinet, such as Mr. Pearson's close friend, Finance Minister Walter Gordon, and Trade Minister Sharp. The Ottawa Valley, the Seaway shore, Tobaccoland and Toronto would see the greatest massacre, only from Ottawa east to the Quebec border would the Liberals hold an enclave.

A QUEBEC PARTY?
On the other hand, Liberals would certainly make substantial gains in Quebec province. There they could expect to win 9 seats from the Conservatives, 3 from the Tories and 2 from the Blocs.

Only minor changes would be expected elsewhere, but some of these are individually quite obvious and predictable.

The Liberal Party, according to the survey, would sink from its present 128 seats in the Commons to 125 of which more than half would be French-Canadian representation. The Conservatives, who now have 91 seats, would rise to 111. The New Democratic Party would probably gain seats, but despite a small number of gains and losses would end up where it now is, with 17 seats. The smallest state would drop from 15 to 4 M.P.s and from rural Quebec. The Blocs would drop one seat to 3 M.P.s.

There can be no unanimous agreement among the Liberal ranks on the Liberal victory in the Ontario election, in which so many Liberal M.P.s foresee their personal defeat. Equally there can be no election fever in the backbones of either old party which the strategists foresee another state arising from a 1964 vote. This makes it possible that there will be no election this year.

But the urgent backstage strategists will continue. There now are to replace Mike Pearson by Paul Martin, who in the belief of Liberal backers, could beat Mr. Diefenderfer and create a new party for his party. And the Tories still want to change Mr. Diefenderfer to change Mr. Diefenderfer. The highly-disputed open vote of confidence in him, they seek some "new look" leader who could promise competent administration instead of perpetual politicking, because such a leader would attract widespread commonsense support.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have two granddaughters, one a year old and the other 28 months. When the older girl was a year old the young mother decided it was time for her to feed herself. She put the baby's food in front of her and let her eat as best she could, which ended up in a horrible mess, and I don't think the child got enough to eat.

Am I wrong in believing children should be fed until they want to do it themselves, which usually is gradual, and given easier foods first? Is there a certain age when their bodies and minds co-ordinate? Am I too old-fashioned and worrying for nothing?

These parents are now threatening to do the same to the smaller child. I am afraid the children will end up with impaired health because the young people of today are too lax to care for their poor innocent children. —MRS. D. E.

Slow down, just a little minute, Worring Grandma. Let's see if there's anything to worry about.

There isn't any set rule as to when babies are ready to feed themselves. About 12 or 14 months is average—some start sooner, some later. Messy? Sure, they're messy. So mothers clean 'em up. Remember?

You don't mention that the child is either sickly or underweight. That would indicate that this baby, like any other, will eat if she's hungry. Could it be that the "not eating" is something that happens when somebody else is around? Such as well—Grandma? Could be. Kids are show-offs.

My personal preference is for easing a baby into self-feeding, but I don't think there's much of a health aspect involved.

Unless there is some gross neglect, I don't think we're justified in accusing young people of being "too lazy." In fact, sometimes all we do is show our age by complaining about the younger generation.

As a matter of fact, there were times when I wasn't sure my own children had enough sense to come in out of the rain, but now that they are adults, I'm beginning to see traces of their early training paying off, albeit they have to adapt what they learned to conditions which are now quite different from those that existed when they were children—and much more different from conditions when I was a boy.

Relax and enjoy your grandchildren. And if they make a "horrible mess" as they learn to eat, you don't have to do the cleaning up!

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 61 and was told I could not have a Pap test because of lack of natural secretions. Is this true? If so are there other tests?—D.M.G.

Women can have the Pap test at any age. It is a matter of gently scraping the tissue of the cervix and vaginal wall. (There is no discomfort.) This does not depend on secretions. If any abnormal cells are disclosed, additional tests on the order of biopsy or D. and C. (dilatation and curettage) are made.

The latest scientific effort to prove the monster story is sponsored by a pro-monster Conservative member of Parliament, David James.

Extravaganza

Canada's own brand of radical socialism is being advanced with a rapidity that would shame a nineteenth century Utopian. The Financial Post is a progressive national daily social security system just without doubt, strain deeply into the dominant socialist of twentieth century Europe who desperately want it but haven't yet made it. In Canada, first came government welfare on the periphery: family allowances, old age security, unemployment insurance. Then came government welfare hard-core variety: universal hospital insurance and one of the most lavish, elaborate and costly pension plans yet devised by an industrial society.

Now, before the pension extravaganza has even been played, come proposals for an all-inclusive whiz bang, shoot-the-work medical insurance scheme. Few Canadians will object, comments The Financial Post, to the concept of adequate medical care for all. Nor would most Canadians deny the many benefits, experiments and hardships brought about by two decades of government welfare. But one question remains: Can we at this moment and for the years immediately ahead afford it all? Credit to grave security is what the intentions of the frays and doctrines of the 1930s are about to give us. But surely in national spending, as in family budgeting, there are wise limits and priorities to be observed. The hard truth is that Canada right now allocates a bigger slice of national income to welfare than its chief trade partners do. The widening of social security with pensions and medicare would make the disparity substantially greater. We devote 12 per cent of personal income to welfare as against eight per cent in Britain and seven per cent in the U.S. We now spend through our governments twice as large a proportion of national income on welfare as we did 15 years ago.

Benefits vs. Costs

The decision of the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee to back away from the Administration's medicare plan for the time being doesn't represent a victory for the medical profession which opposes it through the American Medical Assn., though the AMA got to its feet and cheered in its San Francisco convention when the news was heard.

It was not so much opposition to "socialized medicine" as apprehension of the high costs of medicare to workers and employers alike that has chilled its support. Social Security itself is firmly fixed in the government structure. But its obvious failure to provide adequate retirement for millions and its exclusion of a large, even more needy segment of the population are of national concern. A top pension of $127 a month and an average of $77 a month do not meet the needs of many retired persons. Yet the tax burden on employers and employees alike is significant.

A Republican move on the committee to increase Social Security benefits by six per cent was defeated in a 12-to-1 vote. A Democratic move for a five per cent increase was adopted. The benefits increase is needed by many but the tax increase will hurt. House Democrats who hope the Senate will add the costs of the Administration program for hospital and nursing home care for the elderly on top of this five per cent tax boost, and if so that it will be approved in the House, are whistling up a campaign tune.

A medicare program which would permit exclusion by voluntary action of the millions able to and now providing for their own old-age medical and hospital services lies within the reasonable scope of federal action. But to add compulsory medicare taxes to the five per cent boost now proposed for a needed raise in Social Security retirement benefits would be unjustified. No agreement on medicare may be expected in this session of Congress.—Portland Oregonian.

In Passing

A woman reader postcards us: "It is due to the natural law of the survival of the fittest that women outlive men." But, lady, this law is circumvented by civilization which protects the weak.

"Everything I have I owe to spaghetti," says Sophia Loren. That's a lot to owe, as she evidently has everything, inventorially and in optimum development and proportions.

It wouldn't cost much to run the United Nations if its delegates were paid on a peace-work-accomplished basis.

Social Items From Rutland

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bach, Hartman Road, was the scene of a pleasant social event recently, when some twenty-five friends, relatives and school teachers gathered to commemorate twenty-five years service by Paul Bach as chief engineer and bus driver for the Rutland Elementary School. Mr. Bach started the first bus service for pupils of the Rutland district in 1945, driving an Essex car in which 11 pupils were carried. Now, 19 years later, the bus takes 60 pupils from the same district.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Layden and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wolfe, returned on Wednesday from an enjoyable fishing trip, spent at Trout Lake, in the Revelstoke district.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buresh of Salmon Arm, and their family, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Buresh's mother, Mrs. H. V. Bice, on Hobson Road.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Blanchard, Leithhead Road, have been their daughter, Mrs. W. D. Sten, and family, of Hope, B.C. Mrs. Blanchard accompanied them as far as Vancouver on their return journey, for a visit to the coast city.

St. Theresa's Catholic Women's League of Rutland held a very successful Strawberry Tea on Sunday afternoon. Because of the unsettled weather the tea held in the basement hall instead of on the lawn as had been originally planned. An interesting feature of the afternoon was the jellybean guessing contest, which was won by Mrs. Elsie Heger with a guess of 620. The correct number was 617. The children's contest was also successful.

OFF TO GUIDE CAMP

Pictured above is Barbara Paine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Paine, who was chosen by the North Okanagan Division of Girl Guides to travel to Camp Heritage in New Brunswick. Guide camps are being held in every province of Canada this week and chosen Guides are being exchanged between the eastern and western provinces. Barbara, who is a member of the 1st Glenora Guide Company, left by air on Sunday for New Brunswick.

ANN LANDERS

Glasses Designed To Improve Sight

Dear Ann Landers: Why don't you mind your own business and stick to counseling mixed-up people who are having marital problems?

As an embalmer and undertaker I resent your advice to the woman who wanted to know if it was proper to leave glasses on a person laid out for viewing. You said the idea of displaying the deceased was to suggest that the person was "sleeping." You added, and I quote, "Since it is unlikely that people sleep with their glasses on they should be left off."

If this were true, Ann Landers, why are policemen and firemen traditionally laid out in full uniform with the right hand holding the visor of the cap across the forehead? Do you think policemen and firemen sleep in their uniforms and take their hats to bed with them? General MacArthur lay in state, resplendent in five-star regalia. Are you under the impression that General MacArthur slept in that outfit?

Speaking of sleep, I think you must have been in a fairly deep slumber yourself when you wrote that reply. Why don't you admit you were wrong and apologize? NO NAME PLEASE.

Dear No Name: All right. So they aren't sleeping. Eye glasses are designed to improve the sight, not if you should ever hear of a case where glasses over the closed eyes of a person (either living or dead) achieve this, will you please let me know?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I do not smoke. We have no ash trays in our home, and this is not an oversight, believe me. It is a way of letting our guests know we don't want anyone smoking when they visit in our house.

Last evening a new business associate of my husband's came over. The very first thing he did was light a cigarette. He then looked around the room for an ash tray, and seeing none he said, "I guess nobody around here smokes." With that he flicked the cigarette ashes in his pants cuff.

Winfield United Church Scene Of Pretty Wedding Ceremony

Bouquets of roses and peonies decorated the Winfield United Church and formed a pretty background for the marriage of Sharon Marguerite Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. C. Gibson, to the Rev. Mr. W. H. C. Gibson, who is the Bishop of Saskatchewan, in the St. James' Anglican Church, Winnipeg, on Sunday, June 30, at 3 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. C. Gibson, who are the parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. C. Gibson, who are the parents of the groom. The wedding was performed at St. James' Anglican Church, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The bride was Mrs. Evelyn Stowe of Winfield who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "You'll Never Walk Alone" accompanied by the organist Graham Dickie of Lumby, B.C. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a floor-length gown of white silk tulle, with a long train, and a matching veil. The groom was in a tuxedo, and the wedding was a beautiful ceremony.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked by bouquets of roses, and the toast to the bride was given by Murray Sherrin and ably answered by the groom. Before leaving on her honeymoon the bride changed into a pink linen dress with matching jacket, with white accessories completing her ensemble.

Gaiety And Youth Are Theme Of New York Fashion Shows

NEW YORK (CP) — Gaiety in such lovely combinations as and youth provided the theme for this week's New York fall fashion show. Grey flannel suits, in practically every color, were the main attraction. The models wore a variety of styles, including a long, flowing dress, a short, flared dress, and a long, flowing dress. The models wore a variety of styles, including a long, flowing dress, a short, flared dress, and a long, flowing dress.

Ben Zuckerman, Count Sarml and Geoffrey Beene's collections suggested three types of wealthy fashion personalities. Perfect for a political candidate's wife are Zuckerman's outrageously expensive suits and dresses. They never offend by being beautifully extravagant. Meticulous, refined, faultlessly tasteful is the impression each model provided in her longer than usual pastel jacket suits, or crisply shaped coats in quiet, but luscious hues.

Sarml manages to handle opulence like a $7,000 pink opaline embroidered floor-length evening coat, shaggy with white feathers, without letting it get out of hand.

A newcomer who has latched onto the rich young matron called the fashion intellectual is Beene, a fashion critic award winner this year. While this young designer believes in simplicity, he manages to mark clothes with individuality—his own design individuality—without stamping them as way-out or avant garde.

JACKET LENGTHS VARY Suit jackets were seen at every length from short cropped to hipline. But Pauline Trigere believes the longer suit jacket is the trend and she's seldom wrong. Geoffrey Beene, announced as one of the City fashion award winners this week, also is a longer-jacket advocate.

In coats you'll find just about every style for fall—skinny to swingy. The more flaring silhouette seems to be due for a return. There were a lot of wraparounds. That's another trend to watch.

For social occasions velvet and satin seem to be replacing the almost blanketed use of chiffon last year. Very lovely and used by many designers was brown velvet. There also is a trend back to flat and plain fabrics. Tweeds, of course, but no bulkiness and

Seven Olympic Records Go And U.S. Tokyo Hopes Rise

NEW YORK (CP)—A two-day roundup by United States athletes that saw seven Olympic records surpassed prompted U.S. track coach Bob Gieger to sound an optimistic note about his country's chances in Tokyo next October.

"Right now I'd say our chances are pretty good," said Gieger, who is watching from Rome, where he is coaching the U.S. team in the trials at the Handball Island Friday and Saturday.

Past performances indicate that breaking an Olympic record is no guarantee of a gold medal. Only three of the men's 22 marks withstood the assault at Rome in 1960 with some being broken four or five times in a single event. But the week-end competition produced some impressive showings by some standards.

Ralph Boston, who wiped out Jesse Owens's 24-year-old Olympic mark with a broad jump of 26 ft. 7 1/2 in. in the 1960 games, leapt nearly a foot farther at 27-5 1/2, exceeding the world record by more than two inches, although a following wind made the jump ineligible for official recognition.

Veteran Hayes Jones, who plans to retire after the Tokyo Games, won the 110-meter hurdles in 1:34 seconds, a tenth of a second faster than one of the marks that didn't fall at Rome.

Other performances were less promising. Dyrrol Burleson edged Tom O'Hara for the seventh time in eight meetings in the slow time of 3:45.4 for the 1500 meters, nearly 10 seconds slower than the 1960 Olympic time of Herb Elliott of Australia.

Jerry Seibert's 1:42.2 in the 800 meters and Ollan Cassell's 4:59 in the 400 meters were other disappointments in events in which U.S. athletes are expected to do well at Tokyo.

Adolph Plummer, the world recordholder at 400, failed to qualify for the finals and Jim Beatty dropped out with two laps to go at 5:00.

Mayor Backs Proposal For Work-Play Centre

VERNON (Staff)—Mayor Elwood Rice has voiced support to a plan by the Okanagan Commemorative Pioneer Cultural Society, located by the Knights of Columbus in Vernon for a $1,000,000 office-recreation centre near the civic complex.

"I laid out three proposals. The centre would have to meet the plans were to be dependent on that site; they could be adapted to the civic complex complex and the site must be primarily for recreational purposes."

"I have been assured these will be done and I am in complete agreement with them going ahead with the development," Mayor Rice said.

The three-story building, planned for the southeastern corner of the three-block civic centre site is expected to include a professional-commercial building, a businessmen's sports club plus a banquet hall and cafe, with a capacity of 500 to 600 persons.

There will also be a portion which could serve as a meeting place for organizations.

"It will enhance the civic centre site, give more substance to it," Mayor Rice said.

"We have plans here giving a start on the building is expected next spring."

"There is a lot of merit in encouraging them to develop. The other side would have to be given no consideration with the city's development so when our site is complete, the other will be complete," Mayor Rice said.

It could almost be said by performing a basically reverse fiscal deed and there would be no consideration with the city's recreation site on the Harris street.

Phils Sweep 3, Back Atop NL

By RAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The gusty wind that shook San Francisco over the weekend was not one of Candlestick's ordinary breezes. It was a Philadelphia Phillies breeze, created by Philadelphia Phillies on their way past the Giants into first place in the National League.

The Phillies, who failed to place a man higher than third in the voting for the NL all-star team, looked like first stringers Sunday as they completed a three-game sweep of the Giants with a 3-1 victory.

In other NL games, St. Louis Cardinals topped Cincinnati Reds 3-1, Milwaukee Braves whacked Chicago Cubs 7-1, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked New York Mets 5-0 and Pittsburgh Pirates smacked Houston Colt .45's 7-1.

The Phils took 11 innings to tame the Giants 3-1 Saturday while Chicago edged Milwaukee 4-3, Houston downed the Pirates 3-1 and the Reds and Dodgers took 3-2 decisions over the Cards and Mets.

Jimenez Pounds Oriole Pitching Leads KC Out Of Cellar With Win

By MURRAY CHASS

Manny Jimenez, the ram-bunctious revolutionary, still may have problems, but he won't get any sympathy from Baltimore Orioles.

Nicklaus Cops Whitmarsh Win

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (CP) — The chip shot from the fringe of the final green bounced straight for the pin, then rolled by. Both Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus gulped.

The near miss by Player Sunday presented Nicklaus with $24,000 first-prize money in the $125,000 Whitmarsh Open with a 12-under-par 278. Player settled for $16,000.

SOCCER WINNER
MADRID (AP) — Zaragoza won the Spanish soccer cup by beating Atletico de Madrid 2-1 in the final here Sunday. A crowd of 90,000 turned out for the final.

Easy Victory For Patterson

STOCKHOLM Sweden (AP) — Floyd Patterson, the former world heavyweight champion, wants another crack at the title but most of all he wants to fight Sonny Liston again.

He was a giant step towards these goals by decisively out-punching Eddie Machen in their 13-round bout here Sunday night before 60,000 at the Rasmussen outdoor stadium.

Patterson showed surprisingly little of the ring rust he displayed in his first comeback fight here last winter against champion Santa Amador.

Except for the seventh round, which Machen won with a slugging right to the jaw, Patterson dominated the fight with his familiar peckaboo guard and lightning fast kangaroo punches.

Redcaps Even SOK'M Finals

RUTLAND — Rutland Redcaps evened the SOK'M League finals at a game where they overcame the Kenderdy Merchants by a score of 10-4 here Sunday.

Dave Cooke went the route for the winners, showing only five scattered hits, and fanning five. His teammates gave him good support.

Hay took the loss, giving up 10 runs and seven hits, which included a double and a triple by Dale Forsythe and a home run by Joe Uyeyama in the seventh, scoring Frank Buckland ahead of him.

Halverson, in relief, gave up two more runs in the final.

Final game of the series will be played at Kenderdy Sunday, at 2 p.m.

Vernon Splits With Merritt

MERRITT (CP) — Merritt split a doubleheader with Vernon in the Okanagan Mainline Senior Baseball League at the weekend, taking the first game 1-0 and losing the second 11-2.

Bob Barker and scored the only run in the first game, singling and wing driven home by a sacrifice by B. Kitchens in the second.

Bill McAdams gave up two hits to pitch Merritt to the win. Bert Asay was the loser for Vernon, also giving up two.

Vernon scored six runs in the fourth in winning the second game behind the pitching of Gary Driessen.

Quesnel Corner To Be Wider

LUMBY (Correspondent) — The department of highways is widening Quesnel Corner, about one mile south of Lumby on Highway 6.

All traffic is being detoured along Whitevale Road between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. each day, with the exception of holidays and weekends until the job is completed.

Work crews are also replacing culverts along the Vernon road.

Meanwhile, the Lumby and Jones Creek bridges are completed and traffic has resumed as usual, after being rerouted for weeks while the bridges were laminated and black-topped.

Red Star Beats Coast All-Stars

VANCOUVER (CP) — Red Star of Belgrade, soccer champions of Yugoslavia, opened an exhibition tour of North America here Sunday by defeating the Vancouver All-Stars 4-2 before a crowd of 8,637.

Led by veteran inside left Borivoje Kostic, the Belgrade team opened big holes in the Vancouver defence early in the game and took a 2-0 half-time lead.

Former Teammate Deadly As Labatts Slip To Third

A stung renegade held Kelowna Labatts in check while the Pentucket mates capitalized on defensive lapses to move in to second place in the Okanagan Mainline Baseball League.

The fattering rain, dropping their record in a row, left the Pentucket mates with a 3-1 win behind the Red Sox and two and a half games behind league-leading Kelowna.

Larry Webster, the Pentucket left-hander, coasted to a 3-1 win striking out 16 Labatts en route.

The ex-Labatt ex-Merritt Lumber, had little difficulty shaking Kelowna batters. He scattered five safeties, with the only damaging blow off the bat of Labatts' catcher-manager Jack Barker, a home run in the first inning. Kelowna never managed more than one hit in the rest of the way, picking up singles in the third, fourth, seventh and ninth.

Kelowna missed opportunities in the seventh and ninth innings when they had two base-runners in each case, but Webster rose to both occasions, getting the final out via the strikeout route.

Bad Englishby matched Webster for the six innings he worked. He gave up one run, charged to Bill Martino who started on the hill for Labatts, and four hits. He fanned nine Red Sox in his final chore, but the damage was done before he came on the scene.

After Sox catcher Albie Richards tied the score with a solo shot over the right centre field fence, the rain shut that Barker's went over, Pentucket counted a double, a pair of singles and two Labatts' errors, to count their remaining four runs in the fourth. They never threatened again as Englishby held them in check the rest of the way.

For the second successive game, Kelowna could not over-Pentucket the early deficit. The up-pennings were there in the late innings, but they couldn't come through with the base hits, leaving runners stranded.

Webster, the young southpaw, pitched perhaps his best game of the season against the Labatts. He was particularly effective with his slider.

Lotteries Under Scrutiny And for a Sound Reason

By BORIS MISRAH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lotteries around the world to finance hospitals, schools, medical research and recreational activities.

Perhaps the best known of the lotteries—to Canadians, at least—is the Irish Sweepstakes which began in 1930 and from which hospitals have received about $175,000,000 since.

There is little wonder, then, that Canada's royal commission on health services two weeks ago suggested amending the regulations that prohibit lotteries for medical research and health services.

ONE HAS ASKED
Quebec has asked for such an amendment. The request was made last at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa in November, 1963. The federal government agreed to study the issue.

Government-run or supervised lotteries are common in Europe as well as in Central and South America, Africa and Australia and New Zealand. The governments of India does not encourage lotteries but state governments are authorized to conduct private organizations of lotteries in 1957. The state lotteries to conduct lotteries for social purposes, mainly state lotteries.

In the United States, New Hampshire Sweepstakes which began in 1963 and from which hospitals have received about $175,000,000 since.

There is little wonder, then, that Canada's royal commission on health services two weeks ago suggested amending the regulations that prohibit lotteries for medical research and health services.

TRUST RUNS THREE
The Irish Hospitals Trust runs three annual sweepstakes—the Grand National Sweepstakes, the Cambridge Derby and the Irish Sweepstakes Derby.

Prize money on the 1964 Irish Sweepstakes Derby totalled $9,000,000, with the amount being made last at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa in November, 1963. The federal government agreed to study the issue.

Happiest Canadians By Far Those Busy Auto Producers

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The happiest people in the Canadian community these days are the auto producers—those who are producing cars and trucks.

Production figures for the first six months of 1964 have hit for Canada—astronomical proportions and show no sign of slowing down.

For the first six months of the year the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, known formerly as the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, reported that car and truck production in Canada totalled 423,081 units compared with what was a record last year at this time of 351,321 units.

The breakdown is 358,127 cars and 64,954 trucks produced compared with 296,169 cars and 55,152 trucks produced during the same 1963 period.

GM LEADS
General Motors of Canada Ltd., by far the industry's giant, accounted for 211,583 units of the total, or just under 50 per cent. Last year the total was 180,380 units of 351,321 produced.

Sad Widower Found Hanging
DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Last Christmas morning Mrs. Rose Urlando, 42, was shot to death as she opened the front door of her home to stop a gang fight outside. The death left 12-month-old children and Calvin Urlando, 38, the father, a widower. Police found Urlando hanging Sunday. They said he apparently killed himself in his grief.

EXPORTS INCREASED
Britain's statistics bureau says Canadian exports to Britain set a postwar record of $336,000,000 in 1963, 11 per cent higher than 1962.

or slightly more than half. Ford Motor Co. Ltd. is next with 114,905 units while Chrysler of Canada Ltd. follows with 60,766. Comparative figures for 1963 are 93,012 and 47,906 units respectively.

Next on the list is American Motors (Canada) Ltd. with 19,140 units compared with 18,465 and Studebaker Corp.'s automotive division at Hamilton with 8,115 cars compared with 4,332. Volvo (Canada) Ltd., which began production of cars at Dartmouth, N.S. in June, 1963, accounted for 1,200 units for the first six months compared with 40 units produced last year as production had only started.

Here's a look at how some individual models are faring: Chrysler's Dodge grabbed the largest part of that firm's increase with production of 15,282 cars compared with last year's 9,665. Other Chrysler products are either holding their own or have shown increases.

LEADS FOR FORD
Ford's production increase is led by the Ford, which has jumped by 7,973 units to 36,709. Next winner for Ford is the compact Comet, up by 7,028 cars to 13,567. This gain, however, was offset by the loss in production of Mercurys—down to 6,331 units compared with 13,653 produced at this time last year. The Fairlane and Falcon both show relatively slight increases, while Meteor rose by 8,072 units to 15,633.

General Motors' models have shown some impressive gains. The association lumps together Chevrolet, Chevy II, Corvette and Chevelle production, and output for these four in the first six months rose by 11,076 to 81,735 units.

Oldsmobile production rose to 14,716 units compared with 8,028 produced last year, while Buick jumped to 11,785 units compared with 6,677. Increases in production of Auditions and Pontiacs have been comparatively small.

Traffic Accidents, Riots Mar July 4 Weekend

NEW YORK (AP)—Riots by hundreds of youths and a record death toll on the highways marred what otherwise was generally a "safe and sane" Fourth of July holiday weekend in the United States.

Police used tear gas, dogs and cattle prods to break up riots at five places across the country. About 200 persons were arrested. Several officers and rioters were injured.

The Associated Press count of deaths on the highway from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday was 47. There were 31 deaths in boating accidents and 117 by drowning for a total of 195.

The heavy traffic death toll compared to the previous high of 442 set during the three-day July 4 Independence Day holiday in 1960.

The holiday riots occurred at Indian Lake, near Bellefontaine, Ohio; Newport, R.I.; Garrettsville, Kan.; West Yellowstone, Mont.; and Pleasanton, Calif.

YOUTHS DEMONSTRATE
At Indian Lake, an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 beer-drinking college youths staged riotous demonstrations both Friday and Saturday nights.

These kids were a big of dynamite waiting for something to set them off, a sheriff said.

More than 50 young men were arrested on the two nights. Tear gas was used to quell the rioting.

At Garrettsville, Kan., about 2,000 beer-drinking youths started a riot on an outdoor dance floor Saturday night. Two officers were injured by exploding cherry bombs.

Thousands had converged on the small Kansas town for the annual sports car races. The eight-man Garrettsville police force called in an extra 150 officers from nearby communities.

Police dogs bit several persons while helping to herd the unruly crowd to Garrettsville Park. There, several hundred youths attempted to crash through police lines to get at the municipal water works and power plant. Police used tear gas and cattle prods and nightsticks to get things under control.

USE AXE HANDLES
At West Yellowstone, Mont., about 30 teenagers used axe handles against a mob of 1,000 teen-agers and college-age youngsters Saturday night after the mob tore down fences, tipped over outdoor toilets and signs, and destroyed a trailer for tourist fuel in the resort town.

Four young men were jailed but no fines were levied.

At Pleasanton, Calif., the annual Alameda County fair was disrupted Saturday night after officers tried to send home a half-dozen youths who had been drinking, were throwing firecrackers, and were shouting and swearing, police said.

The youths began fighting with police. As officers arrested rioters and put them in patrol cars, other youths yanked their fire.

Said Chief of Police Walter J. McCann: "Every time someone threw a punch and the officers grabbed the guy, they had six more to fight with."

Firemen used high pressure hoses on the rioters after a cherry bomb was hurled into a patrol car, injuring a deputy sheriff's leg.

Four young men were jailed but no fines were levied.

At Pleasanton, Calif., the annual Alameda County fair was disrupted Saturday night after officers tried to send home a half-dozen youths who had been drinking, were throwing firecrackers, and were shouting and swearing, police said.

The youths began fighting with police. As officers arrested rioters and put them in patrol cars, other youths yanked their fire.

Said Chief of Police Walter J. McCann: "Every time someone threw a punch and the officers grabbed the guy, they had six more to fight with."

Firemen used high pressure hoses on the rioters after a cherry bomb was hurled into a patrol car, injuring a deputy sheriff's leg.

Thousands had converged on the small Kansas town for the annual sports car races. The eight-man Garrettsville police force called in an extra 150 officers from nearby communities.

Police dogs bit several persons while helping to herd the unruly crowd to Garrettsville Park. There, several hundred youths attempted to crash through police lines to get at the municipal water works and power plant. Police used tear gas and cattle prods and nightsticks to get things under control.

USE AXE HANDLES
At West Yellowstone, Mont., about 30 teenagers used axe handles against a mob of 1,000 teen-agers and college-age youngsters Saturday night after the mob tore down fences, tipped over outdoor toilets and signs, and destroyed a trailer for tourist fuel in the resort town.

Four young men were jailed but no fines were levied.

IT WAS SERVICE WITH A PEEP

NORWICH, Conn. (AP)—Talk about service: Attendees at Main Street gas station just couldn't do enough that pulled in around noon Wednesday.

The oil was checked, the battery serviced, the tires inflated the windows—especially the windshield—were polished with great care.

The driver was a young woman clad in a lacy bathing suit.

EAST MEETS WEST

GENEVA (AP)—French-speaking Swiss are always ready to Arab music. A Swiss firm recently sold a transmitter to Radio Baghdad in Iraq, and it is so powerful that it drowned out Radio Sottis, the main Swiss French-language station on the same wavelength. Prospects have been in vain.

This was Ocean Falls 50 years ago. A far cry from the bustling community of today that produces pulp and paper products for Canadian and world markets.

When the fledgling mill became part of the Crown Zellerbach family in 1914, there were just a few scattered inhabitants living in that lonely settlement in Northern B.C. Today, the Ocean Falls mill and townsites employ 1100 people and can produce 190,000 tons of pulp, newsprint and stock for household paper products annually. Freighters from all over the world call at the deepsea port. A fleet of barges plies regularly between the mill and Vancouver.

This tremendous growth is due to the men, methods and materials which all contribute to the high quality of our products. They have turned Ocean Falls from an isolated village into an active, highly productive community.

With these factors at work, we can expect the next 50 years to be as stimulating as the last.
